FOR SALE.

Plumpsock Iron Works.

WITH about 350 acres of land belonging thereto, will be offered for sale by public vendue, if not previously sold at private sale, on Tuesday, the 18th day of August next, at the Court House, in the the borough of Uniontown. This establishment consists of a forge, rolling mill, grist and saw mills. Also, a large brick dwelling house, furnished in a handsome style, with many other dwellings for the accommodation of workmen, and extensive stabling. It is situate in Fayette county, state of Pennsylvania, in the midst of a highly cultivated country on the state road, nine miles east of Brownsville, on the Monongahela river, and the like distance of Connellsville on the Youghiogheny river, five miles northwest of Uniontown, and thirty nine from the city of Pittsburgh. Bar iron is made in this forge by rolling instead of hammering, of a superior quality. Stone coal is the only fuel used in making it, an inexhaustible pit of which is within one hundred yards of the forge. Three men with a horse and cart are sufficient to raise, coke and haul to the forge all the coal necessary for keeping the works in full operation. They are in good order, the machinery almost new. This property is perhaps the most valuable of its kind in the United States, and by suitable attention, it is believed, may be made the most profitable in its operations.

There will be sold also, at the same time and place, the following

HOUSES AND LOTS,

situate in the borough of Union, to wit:

1. The corner house and lot of ground situate on the north side of Elbow street, immediately east of the Court House, No. 20, being the most eligible as well as the most valuable lot of ground in town.

2. That large House and lot of ground No. 3 and part of the adjoining lot, on the west or the north side of Elbow street, in the occupancy of Cuthbert Wiggins as a tavern stand, fronting on said street about one hundred and thirteen feet.

To be sold by

ISAAC MEASON, and
DAN'L. ROGERS,
Ex'rs of Isaac Meason, Esq. dec'd.

The Wanderer,

By EDWARD ENNUI.

No. 9.

"Tie up the knocker! say I'm sick, I'm dead;
The dog star rages, nay, 'tis past a doubt,
All Bedlam or Parnassus is let out!"

The sultry sun relentless glows,
To scorch the silly brains of those,
Who courage have to dare it;
And they who lately bless'd the ray,
That frighted Jacky Frost away,
Would now most gladly spare it.

The Wand'rers pen, is laid supine,
His fancy prompts no sprightly line,
And sick of stupid prosing,
His seeks the flow'ry path of verse
(For fear of doing something worse)
To keep his mind from dozing.

Thermometer at ninety-four!
By Jove—'twould melt at ev'ry pore
An African or Turk, sir;
Let them who like it onward jog,
But I—I'd rather be a dog
And bay the moon,—than have to work sir.

A Portuguese would cross himself,
An Englishman forget his pelf,
A Frenchman break his fiddle;
A Dutchman would his pipe forsake,
And Paddy to his bottle take,
And Yankees cease to peddle.

Blithe Pittsburgh—as an oven hot—
Though faith it is a lovely spot,
That no one need to sneeze at;—
Now drives her sons, with languid feet
To seek within some cool retreat,
A place to catch a breeze at.

So hot the weather—even fame,—
That silly garrulous old dame,
Has nothing new to tell us;
And editors, and authors too,
May suck their thumbs in statu quo,
Like other idle fellows.

Some time ago, my friend the printer,
For Wand'rers did'nt care a splinter,
And Neddy might his ease take;
He'd something still t' amuse the day,
John Anderson and speaker C—y,
The President and sea-snake.

At Marblehead—'tis so they spell,
Though block-head suits it just as well—
They lately saw this odd fish;
A mammoth snake, if you'll believe,
Like that which tempted mother Eve,
Who drove off all their cod fish.

His head, as any barrel big,
And bald, with neither hat nor wig,
His tail, too, he could switch well;
A tempting imp! like him of yore,
This Yankee serpent, so folks swore,
E'en tempted Dr. Mitchell!

So great his strength—says skipper Nathan,
He battled with the Leviathan,
And he we know's a whaler;
From hump back hammer'd soon the rust,
And kick'd up such a mighty dust,
He scar'd this coasting sailor.

This snake—though not as yet transgressing,
Soon set the yankees all to guessing,
His bus'ness and intention;
Some thought, altho' the time ill suited,
By tory fish he'd been deputed,
To meet the fam'd convention;

But having liv'd where billows roar,
And ne'er play'd "snake in grass" on shore,
He sail'd without a compass;
His reck'ning fail'd—his track he lost,
And made at last the Yankee coast,
To late to see the rumpus.

But some more sagely thought him sent,
To greet our worthy President,
As is the fashion—with good wishes;
Nay some insist, they've even heard,
That had he spoke, thus word for word
He'd represent the fishes:

"Your excellency we've been told,
Was once a rebel captain bold,
And bravely fought at Trenton;
And we believe and gladly owu,
The people's happiness alone,
Your honour's mind is bent on.

"Our wisest fish too, sir, have thought,
(And fish discreet are not soon caught)
Your tour is most expedient,
And like a nicely gilded bait,
Will catch the folks of eastern state
And make them most obedient.

"We've heard with pleasure, sir, most hearty
You rule the nation, not a party,
And no fed. now in durance is;
Which makes us—you can't think how glad—
To which your snake begs leave to add
His own heart felt assurances."

This reptile huge—e'er he has fled,
From old Cape Ann and Marblehead,
To some more genial climate;
No doubt to seek a watering-place,
Which fish of fashion and of grace,
In summer spend their time at.

Consumptive alligators there,
And nervous whales find healty air,
And porpoise apoplectic;
There gouty turtle nostrums take,
And "July shad" of slender make,
With anguish cheek and hectic.

There gambling sharks too play a part,
While amorous mermaids touch the heart,
With many a doleful ditty;
The swordfish buck—the dolphin belle,
Are there, the courtly throng to swell,
And lobsters sage and witty.

But still whenever joys resound,
Some scaly fellows will be found,
Where absence might be wish'd;
These swallow pleasures gilded bait,
And rushing headlong to their fate,
To soon alas, are——dish'd!

The nett proceeds of such a resort,
To a man of a finical sort,
A genteel line of life would support sir;
But hold—if much longer I sing,
My readers to blubber I'll bring,
So my serpentine song I snap short sir.

MONTGOMERY.

The last solemn respect was yesterday paid in this city, to the remains of a gallant General, whose vital blood was spilled in defence of his country. His ashes had lain long in a foreign land, but past neglect has been amply remunerated.

The funeral procession which took place agreeably to the able arrangement, was majestic, impressive, and such as the occasion called for. Its immensity of interest drowns our capacity of description, and we wait the talent of an abler pen. The bearers of the pall, were the aged veterans who aided in the achievement of the blessed Independence we now enjoy; and among the flags that were displayed on the occasion, we recognis'd that under which WASHINGTON took his first oath of office as President of the United States.

The day, if we may be allowed the expression, was brilliantly sad. The signal gun was followed by the movement of the procession. The tolling of the bells—the minute guns from our Washington, our Castles, and our Forts—the American half-mast flags spread wide open by a westerly breeze—the crape enshrouded cannon, the mourning hilted sword, the muffled drum, the reversion, in fact of every thing that was joyous, produced an effect solemn and impressive.

The procession, headed by the military, having arrived at the place of interment, halted---by signal the right and left opened, and through the centre the ashes of MONTGOMERY were borne to the Monument long since erected to his memory, and deposited under a discharge of three vollies by General Morton's division.

We did not enter St. Paul's, but a gentleman who was present, informs us, that the solemn funeral service was read by the Right Reverend Bishop Hobart, interspersed with the simple and affecting chaunts of the members of the Handel and Haydn Society. An Oration, extempore and unprepared, but not the less able and impressive on that account, was delivered by the revd. Dr. MASON. And, says our friend, we cannot offer a more decisive proof of the effect which the high-toned feelings, the noble sentiments and exalted patriotism of that speech produced, than by stating, that notwithstanding the solemnity of the occasion and the place, plaudits loud and uncontrolable, accompanied its delivery. At its close, the remains of the General were conveyed to the vault immediately under the monument erected by order of Congress to his memory.

Long, very long, may this people cherish the feeling which has led to this act of honor to so distinguished a chieftain; and thrice happy the chief who is privileged to die as he did, whom we have thus delighted to honor.

Among the various communications respecting the late GENERAL MONTGOMERY, (says a correspondent) whose funeral honors engaged and interested so many of our fellow citizens yesterday, it was omitted to be stated, that the General was a native of Ireland, born near Lifford, in the county of Donegal, in the year 1740, of one of the most respectable families in that country. His elder brother, Alexander Montgomery, enjoyed the paternal estate, and was representative in parliament for the county of Donegal for many years. The late general, to whose remains we have paid such high and merited honors, entered early in life in the British service as captain of infantry, and served with distinguished credit during the war which ended in 1763.---He then resigned his commission and devoted all the energies of his mind and person to the service of his adopted country---America.—*N. EXTRACT OF A LETTER.

"Plymouth, (Eng.) May 14.

"We are in a great bustle, fitting out the guard ships for a cruize in the channel. The Prince Regent is expected here in the month of June. Orders have been received from the Navy Board to complete with all possible despatch the stern of the line of battle ship Kent, building at our dock yard. This vessel has a round stern, and, I have no doubt, that every seaman will give the decided preference to this mode of building. In an engagement the round stern can bring 8 guns to bear upon the same angle.

"The Iphiginia frigate is also fitting out in the most superb manner. The intimate is to convey the Duke of Richmond, his family and suit to Quebec. The upper deck has elegant apartments as far forward as the mainmast; the pannels are covered with moreen, of a fawn color; the mouldings and pilasters superbly gilded: the head and stern are to be the same.—The doors are all mahogany.

"In addition to the two frigates now building here, four others are ordered to be commenced immediately; they are to carry upwards of 50 guns each."

"A new military exercise has been established. The 38th and 90th, two regiments, ordered for Canada, made trial of this new mode on Saturday last. The bayonets were fitted with cork, which were previously burnt. The soldiers were in their white undress. They were ordered to charge; the 38th, which charged in the old way, became so irritated from the decided advantage the 90th had over them, that the officers were obliged to interfere. The result was, that the 38th had from three to five black spots on each man, while the 90th left the field without being touched. The new mode enables the soldier to reach his man one foot farther than on the old plan."

Official Letter of Don Pablo Morillo to the Captain General.

Brigadier Francis Tomas Morales, under the date of the 13th instant, from Calabozo, informs me, that he had that day entered that town, which he found abandoned by the enemy, who left in it three pieces of ordnance dismounted.

Cedeno, who at present styles himself the supreme chief, is stationed six leagues distant from that place, with a force consisting of seven hundred horse & three hundred infantry. But the number of both I believe to be rather exaggerated.

There are well founded suspicions to doubt the existence of Bolivar, of whom I have not been able to learn any thing positive, since the action at Rincon de los Toros. The insurgents while at Rastro, buried with great secrecy a person whom they had brought wounded from the last engagement; and afterwards at Calabozo, they celebrated obsequies during eight days, the motive of which is still unknown. I have given orders to have all these circumstances well ascertained, and in due time I will acquaint your lordship with the result. God preserve your lordship many years.

Head Quarters, at Guataparo, May 18.

NORTHAMPTON, June 30.

Swarms of locusts have recently appeared in this part of the country, extending upon the right bank of Connecticut river, twenty or thirty miles south of this town. It is impossible to measure the extent of the injury they are doing to the timber. Many trees are even now apparently dead. The female locusts are armed with a sting of nearly the third of an inch in length, and of the stiffness and point of a wire sharpened. They attach themselves to the under side of the small limbs, and commence the process of stinging. Their progress is to the extremity of the limb, which is as distinctly marked as it could be by obliquely puncturing the limb with an awl, and so raising the awl at each puncture as to crack the bark in a regular continued, and unless impeded by some obstruction, in nearly a right line. There are about three incisions to an inch, each penetrating to the heart of the limb, which is filled with small worms or eggs, of the colour and appearanoe of very small kernels of rice, but distinctly visible to the naked eye. We are not able to state further particulars in relation to these ruinous insects, nor when, nor where they first appeared, nor precisely how far they have extended themselves---but their progress, so far as we have seen, is marked as the progress of fire. Those who are curious to examine will find myriads of them, upon the east side of the southern extremity of Mount Tom.

BALTIMORE, July 10.

The Editor of the Democratic Press states, that Don Onis has received dispatches from the Spanish government of Pensacola, denying "any aid or assistance having been given by the Spanish authorities to the Seminoles." General Jackson in his order of the 29th May, developes with perspicuity and elegance the causes which led to the capture of Pensacola—in detailing which, he observes, that "the Spanish authorities were compelled from policy or necessity to issue munitions of war to the savages." Now with all due deference to the veracity of Don Onis (or Mr. Binns, who appears to be in his confidence) we are inclined to believe that the word of Gen. Jackson will not suffer by being put in competition with that of either the Don, or the Spanish authorities at Pensacola.

A few weeks since we published a circumstantial statement, signed by captain Gatechair, and six other persons belonging to the schr. Col. George Armistead, relative to their having been robbed and otherwise ill-treated on a voyage from this port to the Havana, on the 4th June, by a piratical schr. presumed by capt. G. to be the [illegible] At the time of the outrage, the schr. had a Spanish ship in company her prize.—We are now enabled to state, on the authority of the editor of the Savannah Republican, that the same privateer (and the Spanish ship) are at this time in the harbour of Savannah. That the captain and a part of the crew of the privateer were snug in the gaol of that city. Her real name having been ascertained to be the Young Spartan.

A few days since, a young man, about 19 years of age, called at the British Consul's office, (in this city) and made himself known as one, whom, but a few years before, the Consul had taken into his own Sunday School, in the North of Ireland, as a poor, little, helpless, wretched out-cast. No nuptial tie had consecrated the birth of this child of misery, baptised in tears. No father owned him for a son. But the Sunday School was to him as a father and a mother, and a sister, and a brother. The precepts of religion and morality which he learned there, have stricken deep root into his heart, have blossomed in beauty, and are now ripening into an abundance of fruit. He poured into the Consul's lap more than a hundred dollars, the little earnings of his bodily labour, in this land of liberty, in this asylum of affliction, to be remitted to his destitute mother, the forlorn daughter of shame and sorrow.

Pittsburgh, June 12.

The Pittsburgh Gazette.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 21, 1818.

The 42d anniversary of American Independence, is now fast receding "with the years before the flood:" we have celebrated it as a day of jubilee, in all the spirit of harmony that becomes the citizens of the same republic, and probably in the manner best calculated to perpetuate a circumstance, that has shed a general influence over our country; certainly in a manner the best adapted to create that national spirit, so necessary to guide the destinies of a nation, to an exalted eminence. It is a fact, much to be lamented, that heretofore the feelings of patriotic pride, which so peculiarly distinguished the commonwealths of ancient days, have been in a great measure paralized, by that most monopolizing of all passions, party spirit. Love of country has been lost sight of in devotion to party; and national objects have imperceptibly dwindled into factional views. There was a bright æra in the Roman history, when the sentence, Romanus sum, was pronounced with a glow of pride that surprized the neighbouring nations. A similar period, if we may trust to the late exhibitions of public spirit, is fast approaching in our own country. We remember to have been present a few years since, when a certain French consul, who had filled some respectable offices under the ancienne regime, and who since figured as the preceptor of the American Napoleon, remarked, that in France the United States were viewed as very trifling establishments. Mon cher, monsieur, said he, vous n'etes plus respectes en France, qu'une ile dans l'Ohio ne l'est dans ce pays ci.* Since the affairs of Niagara and Orleans, we think the great Napoleon himself, would have changed his tone, even had he continued Emperor of the French Republic. But in those days there was really too much foundation for the opinion expressed by the "gallic" Colonel. When we sent to treat with the people, who had just adopted the pass words of "egalite and indivisibilite," our envoys were told that money must be advanced as a preliminary. "Il faut de l'argent." But then we were fresh from the American revolution, and had a man at our head who luckily, was rather more of a practical character than a philosopher. After his day, however, from some cause or other, we were reduced gradually to a very low state indeed, of national respectability.—A system of submission to European impertinence was introduced, that led to its perfect consummation in the late Brit[illegible] outrages, no American can reflect on, without feeling the burning blush of shame mantling his cheek. Good heavens, what an idea must have been entertained of us east of the Atlantic, when such measures could even have been thought of in France and England; this last power takes the liberty of boarding and examining our vessels; Napoleon not to be outdone in oppression, orders his officers to "sink, burn and destroy" every American vessel, whose deck happened to have been contaminated by the footstep of an English midshipman; and yet we submitted! Oh, that the genius of impartial history would neglect to enter it, with her adamantine pen. Thank heaven, we have wiped off a portion of the disgrace, but the means resorted to, for this purpose, have presented a glorious elucidation of the value of federal principles; every measure of federal origin, has been admitted and pursued by that party which, during the halcyon days of peace, decried them as tory and aristocratic; to be sure, some of them were rather caricatured from the emergency of the moment, and from the want of a proper previous arrangement. The moderate taxes, for instance, of the Washington administration, which, had they been prudently organized during the succeeding administrations, would have placed us on high ground in 1812, became immoderate and oppressive, when Mr. Madison had to apply to the system for sudden relief. We are, however, by no means, advocates for taxes in the odious European acceptation of the idea. The system we would wish to adopt, should be one of saving to the people, as well as of emolument to the government. The luxuries and superfluities of life should pay; importations which tend to check the rise of our own manufactures, should be heavily charged; in this manner, when the resources of our country were wanted, the people would not suddenly be bent down with impositions such as were levied last war, when our shoes, our hats, and our iron came to us, after undergoing the inspection of three or four different officers.

But the proudest triumph of Washington principles, is in the acknowledgment of the utility of a navy, that favourite child of federal republicanism; the splendour which has surrounded the American name, since the brilliant achievements of Hull, Decatur, Bainbridge, Jones, Lawrence, and a host of other naval heroes, is the most pleasing, most grateful evidence of the purity of that party, who have been for, years past persecuted and slandered by the men who struggled into power by intrigue, and who maintained it by feeding the delusion of an honest people. Those principles which in '97 and '98 were aristocratic, are now republican; and the very system that drove out the federal administration, is now clung to, as the ark of our prosperity—but it is gilded with the fascinating name of democracy, and the mass of our citizens, without retrospecting, receive it as represented. But be it so; call it what they may, we are satisfied if our country's good is consulted; injustice cannot long rule, and truth will prevail. Mr. Monroe is now at our head; this gentleman has always held a distinguished situation in the republican community of his own state. We sincerely believe him to be a virtuous, able and practical statesman, possessing a mildness of character, and a store of diplomatic experience, that will enable him to run a popular course, and correctly to appreciate European politics.

May the 43d anniversary find us equally satisfied, equally prosperous.

The people of this portion of the United States, ought to be more alive to their interests at this time than at any other period. The rest of the Union may dose; they have scarcely a wish ungratified; they may indulge themselves in the most abstract speculations. The Atlantic merchants have as brilliant prospects as they can expect under almost any other regulations; the farmers are probably better off there, than they ever have been, and the natural advance of improvement presents in close perspective, prosperity in all its gayest colours. But we, only we, separated from the level roads of the east by a broad chain of rugged mountains; divided from the Orleans market by a distance of two thousand miles, our country filled with every material to make us wealthy, are actually in danger of languishing for want of those exertions which are necessary to draw out the advantages, which nature has bestowed on us.—Too much attention to party feeling has been our bane; every object has heretofore been kept out of view, but the one which involved a distinction of mere political feeling. It is time that this should cease; there is actually now no difference in the general measures of the two parties; the principles contended for by federalists for twenty years, are now generally adopted, and acknowledged to be orthodox; measures are not now the subject of contention, but men; the question is now only shall we choose A or B?

Seeing then that this is the case, and that much of our success depends upon the legislatures of our own state, and of [illegible] insure to our section of the country a degree of consideration that will command respect for our claims.

CIRCULAR—Per the Julius Cæsar.

LIVERPOOL, May 23.

The demand for cotton has been very languid for the last fortnight, holders shewing but little inclination to give way: on the other hand, dealers and shippers seemed determined not to meet the demands of the importer. Under these circumstances six thousand and four hundred bags were offered at auction yesterday, and on the whole went off rather better than could be expected. About 5000 bags were sold, and the rest withdrawn. These sales have established the following prices:—Uplands 20 1-2 a 21 1-4; Orleans 21 a 24 1-2; Sea Islands 3s a 4s 2d, being a decline of 4d per lb. on an average on the latter.—Bengals 10 1-2d a 14d; Surats 14d a 19d; Brazils 22d a 26d; West India 21 a 25.

AMERICA—THE NAVY.

DUBLIN, March 19.

We extract the subjoined paragraph from the Courier, of Monday, received by this day's Mail.

"There continues to be larger sales of hemp. One extensive House in the city purchased from 8 to 900 tons on Friday and Saturday, principally, we believe, on account of the demand for the American market."

This squares with the intelligence from America inserted in our last. The Americans require hemp to equip the Ships of War now in progress of building in the Docks of the United States. "We recommend," says The Times, "to the attention of Government, the activity with which the Americans are laying down Ships of War in their Dock Yards. We have no right to prevent this; but we have a right to improve our own Navy, to husband its resources, and endear those engaged in it by kind treatment." This view of the matter is fair enough; but what can the British government do? Can Great Britain, with an overwhelming Debt proceed in the improvement of her Navy in proportion to the rapid increase of the Navy of the Americans, who comparatively, have no debt at all? (Their whole Debt amounts to little more than twenty millions sterling, which they are liquidating every year: that of Great Britain amounts to eight hundred millions.) The answer to this is easy—let England reduce the interest on her debt—let her reduce her unconstitutionally Standing Army—let her abolish useless places and pensions, and apply a part of the Capital that this would give to the improvement of her Navy.—This would keep her Naval Establishment on a respectable and imposing foot. The course of many years could only then determine as to the Mastery. At all events, the prospect of American greatness must occupy much of the attention of the Statesman of the Old World, and particularly those of the British Empire.

LONDON, May 20.

REGENT'S LEVEE.

On Thursday, his Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT held his first Levee for the Season, at Carlton-House. It was extremely crowded by Nobility, Foreigners of distinction, and gentry.

"Previous to the commencement of the Levee, after the usual forms of the PRINCE REGENT entering his state apartments, Mr. RUSH, Envoy Extraordinary, and Minister Plenipotentiary from the United States of America, was introduced to the PRINCE REGENT by Lord Viscount CASTLEREAGH, as principal secretary of State for Foreign Aaffairs, and conducted by ROBERT CHESTER, Esq. the Assistant Master of the Ceremonies. His Excellency had a closet audience, delivered his Credentials, and was most graciouly received. Mr. J. ADAM SMITH Secretary of the Legation of the United States, was also presented to the REGENT upon his appointments."

The introduction of these Personages recals to our recollection an anecdote of the King, highly creditable to the good sense and self possession of his Majesty.

After the king had been compelled, by a series of disasters, to recognize the independence of the United States of America, Mr. JOHN ADAMS was delegated to act as their Envoy at the Court of St. James's. To meet him, the King was obliged to offer violence to his feelings. His Majesty said, previously, that it would be the most trying hour of his life. However, when the hour arrived, the King conquered his repugnance---he received Mr. ADAMS in the most gracious manner, and after the usual introduction, his Majesty said—

"Mr. ADAMS. I have been the last man in the kingdom who consented to recognize the independence of my late Colonies—I shall also be the last person to attempt to violate it."

Mr. ADAMS was greatly affected, and took every opportunity afterwards of contradicting the opinions, then very prevalent, unfavorable to his Majesty's personal character.

NASHVILLE, June 20.

By order of Gen. Jackson, two companies of mounted men are to be raised in the Alabama territory, to serve six months unless sooner discharged. They are to be stationed at Pensacola, and are ordered to scour the country between the Escambia and Appalachicola rivers, destroying all the hostile warriors that may be found, and bringing in the women and children.

NEW-YORK, July 6.

By the arrival of the schr. Gold Huntress, from New-Orleans, the editors of the Mercantile Advertiser have received a file of N. Orleans papers to the 13th of June, one of which contains the articles of capitulation of Fort St. Charles, Barancas, in Pensacola, to the army under the command of Major General Jackson.

The capitulation consists of 23 articles, which occupy two columns of a N. Orleans paper.

The following are among the most important of the conditions required:

The garrison to march out with the honors of war, their arms to be stacked at the foot of the glacis, where they were going to remain until the troops were embarked for Havana, when they will be returned. The officers and troops to carry with them their personal effects.—All titles legally derived from the crown of Spain prior to this date, to be guarranteed and respected—the garrison to be transported to Havana on account of the United States, and Spanish rations allowed where they do not exceed those of the United States.—A competent number of vessels to be furnished for embarking the personal effects, papers, &c. of the governor and those in the civil and military offices, to be delivered up without inspection.—The sick and wounded to be maintained at the expense of the United States.—The garrison of Pensacola to enjoy the same privileges as the garrison of Barancas.—The provisions actually found in the two places to be appropriated for the Spanish troops.—Individuals disposed to remain in Florida, to be respected and protected.—The officers and troops to be transported to Pensacola where they shall remain until embarked for Havana.—The Alabama chief now in the fort, named Opayhola, shall be included in this capitulation, the governor engaging that he shall never return to Florida.—A free toleration to all religions granted.—Any Spanish vessels arriving to be free admitted.

ART. 19.—The capitulation is made under the confidence that the general of the American troops will comply with his offer of returning integrally this province in the state in which he received it, as stated in his official letter.—Approved.—And the restoration made under the conditions expressed in General Jacksons' communication to the Governor of Pensacola, dated 22d May, 1818.

SAVANNAH, July 4.

It is rumoured that the Governor of Georgia, has forwarded to the general government a spirited remonstrance against the conduct of general Jackson.

BOSTON, July 9.

RESTORATION OF EASTPORT.

General Miller and Col. Sargent, arrived in town on Tuesday, from Eastport. On the 30th ult. the American flag was again displayed there, under a national Salute; and the British troops departed for St. Andrews.

Lt. Merchant is left in command of the fort. Mr. Thacher, the collector, has opened the Custom-house, and the authority of the United States on Moose island fully re-established.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 7.

GEN. JACKSON'S DESPATCHES ARRIVED.

Mr. Hambly accompanied by the Southern Indian Chiefs, who visit this city to transact business with government in behalf of their respective tribes, arrived here last evening. Mr. H. is bearer of despatches from Gen. J. addressed to the war department, which are conjectured to contain the official detail of the Southern war from the beginning to the present time: they were delivered to the department by Mr. H. this morning.

An Augusta paper says, on the authority of Mr. Hambly, "that, at the storming of the Barancas, our troops were exposed for six hours to the fire of four 24 pounders! opposed to which they had only one 9 pounder, and a 5 1-2 inch howitzer."

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.

Hot Day.—It has been customary to notice extremely cold weather, and we can now record that of excessive heat—The thermometer in a fair exposure yesterday, having changed from 94 to 95. Saturday was also exceedingly warm, on which day, a stranger, before he alighted from his horse, before a tavern in Market street, fell dead, supposed to be occasioned by fatigue and the heat.

THE STORMING OF PENSACOLA.—On this subject the Quebec Gazette, of the 29th of June offers the following angry remarks:—"A few months will show to what length the Government of the United States may go in America, without exciting the jealousy and resistance of the European Governments. It seems to us that the seizure of Amelia Island, is a parallel, on a smaller theatre, to the entry of Bonaparte's troops into Spain, under the pretence of intestine divisions. The seizure, on neutral territory, and execution of Arbuthnot and Ambriste, is fully as unjustifiable as the seizure and execution of the Duke of Enghein; and the storming of Pensacola, is at least equally as attrocious as the massacres of Madrid."

The Bank of the United States has declared a dividend of three and a half per cent. for the last six months.

---

The Quebec Gazette of June 29 says, that two thousand three hundred and seventy-eight settlers had arrived at Quebec this season.

---

Letters from New Orleans of the 10th ult. gives a most distressing account of the effects of the drought upon the crops. It is supposed, that even should the weather become favourable, there will not be half a crop of cotton, and that the cane is almost destroyed.

A correspondent in the New-York Evening Post, says that 8000 royalists are kept prisoners in the republic of La Plata, from governors down to private soldiers. The authorities are determined on immediate retaliation for any murder which the royalists may commit on a native or foreigner taken fighting in a republican cause.

The Augusta Herald of the 23d ult. says—"The season continues dry, and at times excessively warm; the gardens in this place and neighbourhood are literally parched up. The cotton, corn and tobacco plantations, we understand are nearly ruined. If we have no rain in a short time, the consequences must and will be very serious."

Sea Serpent off Portland!—On Saturday morning, 27th ult. about 10 o'clock, Mr. Jonathan Webber and Richard Hamilton, were bound on the fishing ground from Chebeague to Green Island, in this bay: about 7 miles from Portland they discovered, about one quarter of a mile from land, between Crotch Island point and Marsh Island, the Sea Serpent. Being in a row-boat, they state that they were within about 100 yards of him—the snake lay motionless and appeared to be in three coils, his tail and head extended about 20 feet from the coils; his tail was similar to that of an eel—the protuberances on his back were about the size of a barrel; his body about three feet in diameter; his color black---the size of the coils were to appearance 20 feet in diameter. They left him in this motionless state.—Portland Argus.

POETRY.

TRANSLATION
of the French Poem which appeared in a late Gazette.

THE MAID OF CORINTH
TO HER LOVER, PALEMON.

A lamp's dull rays around my chamber play'd,
(My sickly thoughts, to wander, still inclin'd,
When on the wall, I saw thy form pourtray'd,
And well to note it, bent my curious mind.

For each resemblance of the youth we love,
However faint, will pure delight impart;
Nay, e'en his shadow will sufficient prove,
To soothe the languour of a love-sick heart.

The sweet illusion, still my mind employs,
To fix the shade, I feel a strong desire,
And thus preserve for my admiring eyes,
The godlike form that feeds my bosom's fire.

Inspir'd by love, my purpose I attain;
He guides my hand, to trace the pleasing line,
And though imperfect is the sketch I gain,
My doating fancy blesses the design.

From the "Olio" of a desultory Reader.

For some time the curiosity of the Parisians has been gratified by M. Franconi with a spectacle truly extraordinary, namely, a stag, the most shy and timed of animals, trained to the same performances as the most tractable and courageous horse. Led by his instructor, the docile animal advances into the arena, looking round on every side with an air equally expressive of gentleness and intelligence. At the command of his master, he bends his knees and respectfully bows his head. Mr. Franconi gets upon his back, cracks his whip and fires pistols, at which the animal shews neither fear nor alarm. After this first experiment, he is left to himself, and made to perform the exercises of the manege like the best trained horse. He sets off at full gallop, turns & stops at the word of command. He leaps over rails with wonderful agility, and even clears two horses at once. After every performance, he stands still, fixes his eyes on his master, and endeavours to discover from his looks, whether he is satisfied. M. Franconi then goes up to him pats him and bestows other caresses, for which the gentle animal testifies the highest gratitude. In the last place, a triumphal arch, charged with fire-works, is erected in the middle of the arena, & it is set on fire. The stag, impatient for the signal, starts off as soon as it is given, and passess twice under the blazing arch, amidst the shouts and applauses of the spectators.

To Tanners, Distillers, & Farmers.

THE subscriber assignee of JARED OLD's PATENT IRON MILL for Grinding Bark, Corn and Cobb, &c. for the States of Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, informs the public that they are made and kept for sale by Mr. George Sutton who is sole agent in Pittsburgh to sell Mills in those states, their utility in grinding bark is well known and established to be the best in use. To Distillers they answer a valuable purpose to shell corn and grind the cobb, and by distilling the cobb it is found to make a saving of about one fifth of this method.—To Farmers, to grind feed for cattle, the mill will crack nearly all the corn and grind the cobb quite fine—There are now a considerable number of those mills in use for that purpose, and are highly approved of—Distillers and Farmers in the above states are solicited to make trial of them.—I will warrant them to answer the purpose as dercribed.

Orders for mills will be attended to by Mr. George Sutton, where they can only be had in Pittsburgh, and will be by him forwarded.

For the information of the public I give this NOTICE.
That all mills, sold in the above states by agents of Luther Gale, is an infringement on my right, nor has there any of Gales's mills been sold or used in the western country for grinding bark to my knowledge. Jared Olds' improvement consists of an Iron hopper cast solid on the cylinder or tube and cogs or sharp pointed teeth placed in rows on the inside of the mill. I therefore forbid all persons from making, using or selling mills of the above description in Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, without authority from myself or Calvin Bates and our agents, as all persons found violating said patent, may rest assured that sooner or later they will pay us for our right, if there is law and justice to recover it

317 Acres of Land,
FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishing to close all his business in this country, will sell at an extreme reduced price, his FARM, lying in Beaver county, 4 miles from Beaver town, on the Lisbon and Canton roads from Beaver and Pittsburgh: the land is of good second quality, lies in an oblong square, well watered and timbered, has about 60 acres or upwards cleared and fenced, with a good log cabbin and a large barn on it. An indisputable title will be given.

The contiguity of this land to several valuable markets, renders it an object worthy the attention of the industruous farmer; it is 30 miles from Pittsburgh, 30 from Steubenville, 1½ from the Ohio river, and five miles from the great Falls of Big Beaver river, and is surrounded by 6 or 7 flourishing villages, which will become the great manufacturing spot for the western country where a more stable market than that of commercial places can be had.
